LINGUISTICS 505
WRITING FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

COURSE CONTENT:

1. Examining writing practices in your discipline through analyzing research articles and other academic texts.
2. Interviewing faculty to determine appropriate disciplinary writing conventions, e.g., text structure, argumentation, data commentary, and language use.
3. In consultation with faculty in your discipline, developing appropriate research questions, introductions to research, reviews of the literature, discussions of sources or data, and conclusions.
4. Improving your abilities to draft, revise, peer review, and edit your papers.
5. Presenting your work to the class, your instructors, or supervisors.
6. Enhancing your online presence as a scholar.

Fall 2022
Thursday
3:30-4:45pm
in LH 251
& weekly online components

Professor Ann M. Johns, a seasoned instructor with expertise in teaching academic writing across disciplines, will lead you through your development as an advanced academic writer.

Questions?
Email Dr. Johns at ajohns@sdsu.edu