Our undergraduate majors, minors, and certificates in linguistics (including programs in Teaching English as a Second Language (TESL), computational linguistics and text analytics) prepare students to work in language-related fields in education or industry, and to pursue graduate work in linguistics.

You will also learn about the language majors, minors and certificates we offer in Japanese, Chinese, Korean and Islamic & Arabic Studies. These programs provide an understanding of cultural literacy through the study of literature, cultural traditions, and contemporary aesthetics, which prepares you for careers in the global age.
